Clara Bow Pledges Troth Anew To Harry Richman By Telephone; Still Loves Him Despite Texas Affair

"It" Girl Not Willing To Return Ring; Loves Her Harry

Copyright, 1930, By International News Service
NEW YORK, June 20.—Clara Bow, the flame-haired movie star, hasn't any boy friend in Texas and loves only Harry Richman.
After four months of estrangement from Harry (unknown to the public), Clara pledged her troth anew and confided her troubles to her Broadway beau brummel in a long distance telephone conversation before leaving Dallas, Texas, today for Hollywood.
"They want to bar me from the screen on account of those reports about my being mixed up in an alienation suit," said Clara.

"But everything is fixed up now and I am leaving immediately for Hollywood but wish it was for New York and you, dear."

The International News Service correspondent was visiting Richman in his bungalow palace at Beechhurst, Long Island, and heard the telephone conversation.
Harry had revealed that he had broken with Clara four months ago because she had not answered his letters. He said he decided "it was all off" when he heard his fiancée was going around with Rex Bell, her leading man, and later was infatuated with a Texas man.

Recent reports from Dallas made him determine to telephone Clara and wish her happiness in her new emotional experience. He also intended to ask her to send back his engagement ring.
"I don't think Clara will talk to me," said Harry wistfully, as he asked the long distance telephone operator to get him Dallas.
But Clara did answer in a crystal-clear talkie voice which spilled over the telephone receiver.
"Hello, you big stiff," said Harry.
"Hello, big boy, where you been," said Clara.
"What's this I hear about you having a boy friend in Texas?"
"It's the bunk Harry—honest. I came here to settle that case that I thought was settled a year ago. My lawyer just fixed everything up and I'm leaving for Hollywood."

"You've been a naughty girl, Toots."
"I have not, Harry. I've been a good girl."
"Why didn't you write me?"
"I cut my finger that time and couldn't. Then when you wouldn't believe me I figured you were off me."
"I'm going to England this fall to play London."
"Take me with you, Harry."
"You don't want me to ask for my engagement ring back?"
"No, No."
"And you haven't any boy friend but me?"
"I'll wire you as soon as I get to Hollywood and when I finish my picture I'll be on my way to New York in August."
"You love me, Toots?"
"I love you, Harry, and nobody else."

Handsome Harry hung up the receiver and threw a kiss at each one of the dozen or so photographs of Clara which gazed vivaciously at him from various portions of his bedroom.
"She loves me," said Harry happily.

REPORTS BUSINESS NOT AT STANDSTILL DESPITE SLOWNESS

Ohio State Bureau Claims Situation Similar To 1927.

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—Despite the current recession, business is by no means at a standstill in many lines of industry, the bureau of business research, Ohio State University, points out in its mid-month report on the business and industrial outlook, which was made public today.

It should be kept in mind, Dr. V. V. Booth, assistant editor of the bureau, says in the review, that business activity is not even in reduced volume in many lines of industry, except in comparison with the boom year of 1929.
"The record thus far in 1930 in many of the basic industries," Dr. Booth explains, "compares favorably with the records of 1927 and 1928, which were accepted as satisfactory until the enthusiasm for larger output and great profits engendered by the success of those years forced the unprecedented expansion of 1929."
Despite the small declines in most lines of business activity in May from April, however, the report continues, there were "few signs calculated to stimulate optimism as to an immediate recovery in business to the high levels of 1929, and no significant signs of revival have appeared thus far in June."

"It is a fact that abundant credit at declining rates of interest is available," the report goes on, "and insofar as the absence of these two factors would be a serious impediment to a revival," it may be said that their availability is a favorable factor in the present situation. Since, however, funds are available and rates are low largely because business has been unable to absorb them, it is questionable whether the mere presence of these factors at the present time can be considered of great significance."

"The decline in the volume of business as compared with last year is emphasized by the continued decline in the volume of freight car loadings in May and through the first half of June, and by additional reports of declines for the first quarter in railroad and corporation earnings. In this connection it should be emphasized again, however, that although earnings have declined in 1930 as compared with the high rates of 1929, that railroads and corporations are still reporting satisfactory earnings judged by standards other than those of 1929."

"The construction industry in May showed something more than the usual seasonal decline, and the chief optimistic note for the future lies in the fact that the index of floor space in residential building has been slightly upward for the past two months, while the index of non-residential floor space has been downward, which divergence usually has been associated upon past occasions with a revival following a recession. Public works and utilities were the only type of construction to show a gain over the first five months of last year."

YOUTH ARRESTED ADMITS ROBBERY

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—A 23-year-old Birmingham, Ala., youth was held by police here today for questioning in connection with the daring daylight robbery of the Kohn Hat Shop here last Tuesday. The youth gave his name as Thomas A. Ryan.
The Alabama youth was arrested at a rooming house late yesterday and admitted that he committed the robbery detectives said. Robert W. Freshout, a clerk at the store, identified Ryan as the bandit who stole approximately $150 in money and merchandise Tuesday afternoon.

JUDGE WILL DECIDE ON ACTION BROUGHT TO PREVENT MERGER

Another Chapter On Consolidation Is Expected

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 20.—Decision on a motion to subpoena records of Bethlehem Steel Corporation was expected to be announced either today or tomorrow in common pleas court here by Judge David G. Jenkins.

The action was brought by plaintiffs in a suit to prevent the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem concern. The suit, which was filed by Myron C. Wick Jr., and International Shares Corporation, is scheduled for trial here June 25.
Oral arguments were presented by both sides in the "billion-dollar lawsuit" yesterday. Following the hearing, Judge Jenkins requested counsel to submit written citations by this morning.

Records of the Bethlehem concern are sought, according to the arguments of plaintiff's attorneys, to "disclose the true condition of its financial affairs." An affidavit was submitted from a Cleveland audit concern, declaring that examination of the Bethlehem books would show that the merger stock exchange basis was "grossly inadequate" from the standpoint of sheet and tube stockholders.

TWO AUTOISTS DEAD IN DAYTON CRASH

DAYTON, O., June 20.—Two youths met death here today when their automobile plunged from the highway and crashed into a tree near the outskirts of the city.

Kenneth Barry, 25, was killed instantly and Foster Doyle, 24, died in a local hospital a few minutes later.

C. E. Sweeney who was the only witness to the tragedy, told police that the car was traveling at a high rate of speed. The machine plunged over the curb, tore through a roadside thicket and after striking a tree was hurled fifteen feet into a large pool of stagnant water.

Both men were buried in wreckage under the water and were removed with great difficulty.

TURKS IN BATTLE

LONDON, June 20.—Unconfirmed reports from Tabriz, Persia, today, said 10,000 Turkish troops were fighting Kurds who were entrenched at Mount Ararat, according to London evening newspapers.

WICKERSHAM PROBES ARE GIVEN FREE HAND

POLICE PROBE MYSTERY DEATH

CANTON, O., June 20.—Working without a single clue, police today were investigating the mysterious death of Christ Karas, 36, whose lifeless and mutilated body was found along the Nimishillen Creek by two boys late yesterday.

The murder was the cause of the death was the verdict of Coroner T. C. McQuate, following an examination of the body. A bullet hole was found in the man's head.
Police were working on the theory today that Karas had been murdered Wednesday night. The belief that he was "taken for a ride" and his body dumped along the creek was expressed by Coroner McQuate.

Records at the police department reveal that Karas had been robbed twice on recent occasions. On May 14 he was attacked by four negroes and robbed of $250 and on May 12 his home was ransacked. Detectives offered the theory that Karas was "put on the spot" by a Canton gang for some prejudice held against him.

REPORT REBEL HAS CAPTURED GENERAL

BUENOS AIRES, June 20.—Despite government denials of revolution in Bolivia, dispatches from the Bolivian-Argentine frontier today claimed that Roberto Hinojosa, rebel leader, has captured General Kundt, German generalissimo of the Bolivian army.

Continuing to remain in possession of the customs depot, Villazon, Hinojosa also has taken Oluro, Cochabamba, Sucre, and Potosi, the dispatches declared.

BANDIT KILLED AND COMPANION BEATEN

DETROIT, June 20.—One alleged filling station bandit was shot and killed and another was beaten into unconsciousness here today when a patrolman John Laird caught them in the act of holding up a station attendant. Police say that the two men had staged three robberies within an hour and a half.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Wickersham law enforcement commission will be given a free hand to report on the merits of prohibition, and $250,000 to conduct its investigations for another year, in the second deficiency bill which is expected to pass the house today.

This was assured when leading house dries rejected proposals that a "rider" be written into the bill specifically prohibiting the commission from discussing the merits of the dry law when it reports again to congress.

Thus far the commission has confined its efforts to finding means of making dry law enforcement more effective. This policy is expected to be continued, although Chairman George W. Wickersham has admitted some members of the commission believe if they come to the conclusion that the Volstead act cannot be enforced they should so say.

Representative Cramton (R) of Michigan, house dry leader, said he was content to vote the $250,000 appropriation without changing the language of the law establishing the body. He maintains, the commission should avoid the merits of prohibition, and is convinced it will not embarrass President Hoover by extending its scope.

Approval of the appropriation was expected to be accompanied by speeches of wets flaying the commission as useless.

PRESIDENT HONORS EXPLORER; CROWDS HAIL CONQUERORS

Admiral To Receive Special Medal From Hoover

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The nation's acclaim such as is seldom accorded its heroes who gained fame in peaceful pursuits, came to Richard Evelyn Byrd and his stalwart companions of fourteen months in the Antarctic, at the capital today.

Byrd came, New York's overwhelming demonstration in his honor still fresh in mind, to receive other honors, this time from the president, and to receive a special medal struck by the National Geographic Society for his conquest of the South Pole by air. The modest young real admiral of the navy already had been given the Hubbard medal, awarded only seven others by the geographic society, for his flight across the top of the world.

With Byrd when he arrived on a special train with his party of eighty who participated with him on the Antarctic expedition—half of whom went to the bottom of the world with him—were Mrs. Byrd and the Byrd children.

Special police guards handled the crowds at Union Station and adjacent streets when the train pulled in at 9 o'clock.
The president went direct to the Willard Hotel, where headquarters were established for the scheduled events of the day.

The explorer was greeted by a committee headed by Under Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, Dr. Gilbert P. Grosvenor, president of the geographic society, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett and others.

Several hundred persons were gathered at the station and they cheered vociferously as the admiral, clad in his white naval officer's uniform, walked through the line formed by the police to the station's presidential waiting room.

Outside Byrd and Jahncke talked for the sound motion pictures. Jahncke said the navy was proud of Byrd for his achievements and Byrd replied he was thankful that several navy men were included in his party and that they had lived up to the traditions of the service.

On the streets surrounding the depot several thousand persons were gathered on the sidewalks to greet the heroes of the air.

COAST GUARDSMEN SAVE YOUNG PEOPLE

CLEVELAND, June 20.—Attracted by a flare fashioned from gas-line-soaked shirts and hankerchiefs, coastguardsmen early today rescued two youths and their two girl companions from a drifting boat, whose engine had stalled in Lake Erie.

The youths were Richard Kitzel, 22, and Charles Prosser, 23, both of Painesville. They refused to divulge the names of their girl companions.
The rescue was effected by a coast guard cutter under command of First Mate A. J. Burrows near Fairport harbor. The coastguardsmen were attracted to the helpless craft by the distress signal which the youths made by lighting their gasoline-soaked shirts and hankerchiefs.

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—More than a score of representatives from various Ohio cities were expected to arrive here this afternoon for a conference to discuss the possibility of the formation of an Ohio municipal league. The conference will be held under the auspices of the Ohio State University political science department.

Some of the Ohio cities which have promised to send their mayors to the meeting are Lorain, Marion, Dayton, Piqua, Wooster, Marietta and Dover.

SEEK GIRL HITCH-HIKER WHO WAS THOUGHT ABDUCTED IN OHIO

MECHANICSBURG, O., June 20.—County officials and scores of farmers and citizens were searching this vicinity today for a 20-year-old girl hitch-hiker who was abducted by three men in an automobile late last night.

Charles Smith and Robert Moore, both of Mechanicsburg, told authorities they witnessed the kidnapping. They said they picked up the girl on the road between here and Milford Center as they were returning from a dance. She told them her home was in Cincinnati but did not reveal her name.

COP, BANDIT DUEL TO DEATH

NEW YORK, June 20.—A wild pistol battle between a policeman and a bandit today in Manhattan ended in a duel to the death, each shooting and killing the other.

Edison Scholarship award contest, which means he will go to East Orange, N. J., on July 31, to compete with the winners from the other forty-seven states for the grand award.

Will Cite Autoists Into Court For Violations

Decision to strictly enforce all city ordinances governing the parking of autos within designated lines and measures pertaining to brakes, horns, mufflers, cut-outs, head lights, tail lights, speed limit and reckless driving, was reached at a joint conference of City Manager M. C. Smith, Municipal Judge E. D. Smith, Police Chief O. H. Cornwell and Dilver Belden, auto club secretary, Friday.

It is also emphasized that no double parking will be permitted within the city limits under any circumstances and for any length of time.

All offenders will hereafter be cited into Municipal Court. Tags placed on motor vehicles are to be interpreted as a summons to appear at Police Headquarters and should autoists fail to appear affidavits will be filed against them and warrants issued for their arrest, city officials declare.

The campaign to curb violations of traffic laws resulted in the appearance of five more offending autoists in Municipal Court Thursday. Ralph James, G. A. Willett, L. A. Anderson, Kenneth Elliott and Clarence D. Crawford were each fined the costs, $2.50, for illegal parking.

Citations have been issued for the appearance of other motorists in court Saturday, it was disclosed by police.

BORDER BATTLE MAY FOLLOW SHOOTING

LYCK, EAST PRUSSIA, June 20.—Renewal of the German-Polish frontier conflict seemed inevitable here today over the action of a German border guard who shot and killed a Polish frontier guard near Prostkin.

German investigation of the affair sought to establish self-defense and in the first findings of the investigation it was reported that the patrolling German guard met the Pole on German soil. The latter opened fire immediately and the German, replying, killed his opponent.

The Polish guard's body was seized and taken to Lyck.

AMERICAN AGE ONLY SECOND GOLFER TO CLAIM BOTH TITLES

Brilliant Last Round Defeats Compston; Diegel Runner-Up

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 20.—Bobby Jones was at the zenith of his golfing career today when he captured the British open golf championship to keep company with a British amateur title which he won recently at St. Andrews.

Jones thus qualified as the only American ever to win the British amateur and the British open titles in the same year. This was his third time to win the British open championship, he having been British open champion in 1926 and 1927.

The only previous time that both championships were captured by one man in a single year was in 1890 when John Ball of England accomplished the feat.

Archie Compston, British professional, who completed the third round of play this morning one stroke under Jones' total, blew up completely in the final round. He took eighty-two strokes for the final round for a total of 297 for the tournament.

Compston had played a brilliant third round in a 63 to set a new course record for the Royal Liverpool and lead Jones by one stroke when they entered the fourth and final round.

Jones, after his customary bad start, played the third round in 71. Compston was given a tremendous ovation but when the fourth round started the British star could not keep up the pace. Jones assumed an early lead, being well ahead at the turn.

The American star turned in a 75 for the final round, finishing with a grand total of 151 while Compston's 82 gave him 297 for the total. Leo Diegel was runner-up to Jones with 293. Horton Smith finished with 296, Jim Barnes turned in a 297 while Don More finished with 303. All were Americans.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 20.—Funeral arrangements which were made in a letter to his relatives before he committed suicide, today were being carried out for Earl C. Truman, 39, who fatally wounded himself with a rifle bullet Wednesday.

Truman was found—a day later—in a dying condition beside his car in the basement of his home at Brightwood, near here yesterday afternoon. He had been using the basement for a garage.

He died five minutes after his arrival at a hospital.

Truman's brother, Willis, indicated that his brother's suicide was due to despondency over financial affairs.

ply. "You're a witness—she loves me."

DALLAS, Tex., June 20.—Clara Bow's unheralded visit to Dallas will end today.

Breaking a silence of two days, the red haired "it" girl of the movies, early today announced that she would leave the city within the next twenty-four hours and return to Hollywood at the insistence of officials of the Paramount Company.

Miss Bow's directors requested her return to Hollywood, it was learned, as the result of the reports that the vivacious actress came to this city to settle an alienation suit.

Steadfastly refusing to discuss this report, Miss Bow intimated she would issue a statement "at the proper time" to clear herself.

Fear of a reprimand from Will Hays, "czar of the movies" was believed to have caused Miss Bow to cut short her stay here.

When discovered registered at a fashionable hotel here last Monday under the name of Daisy Hamilton, she declared she was "resting" between pictures in Hollywood, and planned to remain here with friends for two weeks.

B. P. W. Elects Officers At Meeting Thursday

MRS. Elizabeth Finlay Anderson will head the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club another year.

Re-election of Mrs. Anderson and most of the other officers, was a feature of the final meeting of the club season Thursday night.

A picnic supper was served by the Pythian Sisters to seventy-five persons, club members and their guests, at the Knights of Pythias Hall, following which the group adjourned to the home of Miss Louise Shaffer, W. Third St., where a business session and social time was enjoyed in the attractive flower garden.

Those who will serve with Mrs. Anderson as club officers the coming season are: Miss Virginia Fletcher, vice president; Miss Glenna Dinwiddie, recording secretary; Miss Helen Hurley, corresponding secretary; Miss Helen Dadds, treasurer; Miss Mary Beals, assistant treasurer; Miss Dadds, and Miss Beals succeeded Miss Fletcher and Miss Wilma Flomerfelt each of whom served two terms as treasurer and assistant treasurer. Committee heads will be appointed by the president.

Masses of summer flowers made lovely the supper tables. Quantities

Dinner-Dance Enjoyed At Club

THE second of a series of monthly dinner-dances was given at the Xenia Country Club Thursday evening amid a profusion of summer flowers which decorated the club rooms and porch of the club.

A delightful three course dinner was served at small tables in the club rooms and on the porch. Approximately one hundred and thirty guests were present.

Following the dinner, dancing was enjoyed on the new outside dance floor with the Jolly Buddies of Dayton furnishing music for the affair.

There were a large number of the younger set of Xenia present. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. Henry Flynn, chairman; Mrs. Ralph Hall, Mrs. F. Myler, Miss Bess Fulton and Mr. Fred Flynn.

Annual reports were made by club officers. Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer read a report of the recent state B. P. W. convention at Mansfield, to which she was a delegate. Miss Faye Cavanaugh read the report of Miss Nell McKay, the other delegate, who is out of the city.

Hostesses for the meeting were: Miss Letitia Dillencourt, Miss Louise Shaffer, Miss Edith Miller and Mrs. Rose H. Mower.

Pretty Ceremony Unites Couple In Cincinnati

AN interesting summer wedding was that of Miss Jane DeSerly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson DeSerly of Hyde Park, Cincinnati, and Mr. Daniel Eiden, son of Mr. Daniel Eiden, of Jamestown, which was beautifully solemnized at the Seventh Presbyterian Church at Cincinnati, Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion, the altar being banked with lilies, ferns, palms and southern smilax. The Rev. Jesse Halsey read the marriage service.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of ivory satin, made simple. Her veil fell from a cap of ivory lace, arranged with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

Because Miss Catherine Ginter, classmate and childhood friend of the bride, is in Europe, there was no maid of honor.

The bridesmaid's gowns were fashioned along lines of the bride's gown, but in different colors. They were dressed in gowns of orchid, with high waists, ruffled skirts and puffed sleeves. A band of orchid ending in a bow encircled their heads.

Miss Lucille Bards' gown was pale green, trimmed in lavender and Miss Virginia George was in orchid, trimmed in pale green. Miss Dorothy Carothers wore blue, trimmed in yellow and Miss Mary Dom wore yellow, trimmed in blue. Each maid carried spring flowers in shades matching the trimming of their gowns. Their slippers also matched the trimmings and their gloves were white. Each wore a bracelet set with rhinestones and monogrammed, the gift of the bride.

Mr. George Dunlop was best man, and the ushers were Messrs. Howard Fyng, Robert Tapke, Richard Frank, John Bachman, Ralph Niehaus and Dr. O. Arthur Dearth.

A small reception was held at the Queen City Club following the service at the church. The club was beautifully decorated in green and white.

Mrs. Earley is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati, a member of the Mystic Thirteen, Cincinnati Society and the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

Mr. Earley is a graduate of Jamestown High School and is a student in the college of medicine of University of Cincinnati where he will continue his studies next fall. He is a member of the Sigma Chi, Nu Sigma Nu and Sigma Sigma Fraternities.

After July 1 Mr. and Mrs. Earley will be at home in an apartment at 3256 Burnet Ave., Cincinnati.

Mrs. Daniel Lee Earley and son Mr. Neal Earley, mother and brother of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Walker, Mr. Roy Toland, Mr. Jerry Toland and Mr. John Rockhold, Jamestown attend the marriage. Mr. J. E. Christy, Springfield, formerly of Jamestown, also was a guest.

CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY TUESDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Grove Warner, Kemp Road, near Dayton, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home Tuesday evening when a group of sixty relatives and friends joined them.

During the evening music was furnished by Misses Marianna Warner and Dorothy Wolfe and Mr. and Mrs. Warner.

Among guests present were their two daughters and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin O. Karg of Westerville, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harshman of Valley Road and their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Hix Warner and their five grandsons, Warner, Henry, James, Robert Karg and Jonathan Harshman.

Seated at the bride's table during the serving of a dainty refreshment course were: Mrs. Anne Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. James Wolfe, Miss Kate Harner, Mrs. Mary Warner and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Engle. A buffet lunch was served to the other guests present.

XENIAN ATTENDS WEDDING AT CHICAGO TUESDAY

Miss Louise Thornhill, S. Detroit St., has returned home from Chicago where she attended the marriage of Miss Margaret Ann Hunsche and Mr. Kenneth Jamieson McBride, son of Dr. and Mrs. D. L. McBride of Dayton, at Kenilworth, Ill., Tuesday at the Fifth United Presbyterian Church, Le-lan Ave., at Lincoln St., Chicago.

Mr. Earl Collins, Cedarville, was best man at the marriage while Messrs. Lytle, Dean, Russell and Paul McBride, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers and Miss Ruth Hunsche, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Three sisters of the bride were bridesmaids. Mr. and Mrs. McBride will make their home after July 15 in Chicago.

All Sunday Schools of Greene County will take part in an attendance drive to be held Sunday, June 29, sponsored by the Greene County Council of Religious Education.

The purpose of the drive is to determine the per cent in gain in attendance since the first of June.

Mrs. Oakley Edgington and Mrs. J. R. Mason were the committee in charge of the social and Mrs. Harper Hartsook and Mrs. Lewis Weaver were appointed to make arrangements for the meeting in September, the socials being dispensed with during the summer months.

EXTENSION OF BUS LINE ROUTE DENIED BY UTILITIES BODY

Application of the Central Ohio Lines, Inc. for permission to extend the Chillicothe-Xenia bus line to Dayton was overruled Thursday by the state public utilities commission.

The Dayton-Xenia Railway Co. opposed the application. No testimony was taken at the hearing inasmuch as the commission had ruled previously on the plea of another firm for the same service, it is said.

The company operates bus service between Xenia and Chillicothe with a branch line between Jamestown and Springfield and also operates a route between Osborn and Dayton. The extension applied for was from Xenia to Dayton by way of Osborn, which would not parallel the traction line and which would have provided a transportation link between Xenia and the Osborn and Faircliff community.

Various local organizations and individuals had endorsed the project. Opponents of the application also included the Dayton-Xenia Motor Bus Co., the Lake Erie and Western Traction Co., and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

When the protests cited a supreme court ruling denying the commission authority to grant a certificate except certain restrictions were included, the applicant agreed to accept a restricted certificate, but the commission refused to hear the application.

The commission, however, agreed to consider granting an extension from Xenia to Osborn provided the applicant located its bus station at least a quarter of a mile from the company operating between Osborn and Dayton and permitted a layover in Xenia so that a direct connection with the extension could not be made.

The applicant refused the certificate under such restrictions and the commission declined to view exhibits or hear witnesses in support of the application. The ruling is said to have been in conflict with a decision made on the application of the Cannonball Transportation Co., for a certificate between Portsmouth and Columbus and is opposed to recent decisions in which the commission has declared it a great inconvenience to passengers to be required to transfer from one bus to another.

Central Ohio Lines have given notice of their intention to immediately file an application for a rehearing which, if overruled, will be appealed to the supreme court.

NATIONAL GUARD TO ATTEND CAMP PERRY JULY 20 TO AUGUST 3

Company L, 147th Infantry, Ohio National Guard, recruited to its full peace-time strength of sixty-three members, will be encamped at Camp Perry, O., from July 20 to August 3 for its annual summer training period, according to Captain O. H. Cornwell, commanding officer of the local unit.

Captain Cornwell will be able to accompany the guard unit on the trip because he has arranged to take his vacation from his duties as police chief of Xenia during the period Company L will be encamped.

Application of Dr. Marshall Best, Xenia physician, to attend the camp during the stay of Company L has also been approved by regimental headquarters at Cincinnati. Dr. Best received his commission as a first lieutenant in the medical corps several months ago.

Through the efforts of Dr. Best the Xenia guard unit lays claim to the distinction of being probably the only company in the state which has all of its members inoculated against typhoid fever and vaccinated against smallpox.

MAN ARRESTED FOR AUTHORITIES HERE

Robert Mendenhall, 47, of 602 1-2 S. Yellow Springs St., Springfield, arrested late Wednesday by Clark County authorities as a fugitive from justice from Xenia, was a prisoner in the Clark County jail Thursday, pending his removal to this city, where it is claimed he is wanted on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. Xenia police and the local sheriff's office say that they have received no communication from Clark County authorities and that so far as is known there is no charge pending against Mendenhall in Greene County courts.

AUTO DAMAGED

An auto driven by Virgil Melvin, Springfield, employed at the Lang Chevrolet Co., Xenia, was damaged to the extent of bent fenders and running board when a truck backing out from the curb in front of the Greene County Hardware Co., E. BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

ALIVE IN CHRIST—For I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God, I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loveth me, and gave himself for me.—Gal. 2:19, 20.

CAROL TAKES A REST

After a short time on the throne, Carol of Rumania complains of overwork and decides to take a rest. Americans are inclined to look upon the business of being a king as a sinecure; and consequently democratic lips will curl at the spectacle of a crowned head knocking off "work" for a few days in the hills. As a matter of fact, kings, after their fashion, are among the hardest worked institutions in a world from which their divine right has departed.

Carol has been off the job for five years. The royal muscles are flabby. Go away for half a decade, ye sewer diggers; and then come back to pick and shovel and see if it is easy to get out of bed the next morning! Sitting comfortably on a throne requires constant practice. Anyone who rode a saddle for a week, after having been out of it for five years, would be glad to escape for a week to the country and a hammock.

Other considerations might be advanced to excuse Carol's royal breakdown. The life he is reputed to have led since he renounced the throne in favor of his son can hardly have failed to reduce his powers of resistance to the particular form of fatigue to which he is now exposed. The Liberals haven't made things easier for him since he returned to Bucharest. Worry and mental unrest take their toll of the body. The political turmoil, added to matrimonial confusion, which has surrounded his return is enough to give a man a headache, as well as a headache.

Carol may yet be a king in more than name. Give him time. One can't step from the fleshpots to a throne without trying readjustments. When he returns from his vacation, sun-tanned and reinvigorated, we shall be in a better position to judge whether he is lying down on the job or merely has succumbed, as most mortals do at about this time every year, to a desire to escape for a spell from the daily grind.

THE POSITION OF ALFONSO

It is the part of ordinary prudence to use very great "reserve" indeed in perusing the story regarding a republican plot in Spain, to be pulled off this week while King Alfonso is in London. Yet the yarn has elements of plausibility that attract the attention.

According to the account, the enemies of monarchy prefer to try a coup while Alfonso is away from Madrid because they want a bloodless revolution, and in particular desire to avoid harming the king. It is even intimated that Alfonso is getting out of the way in order to give the Republicans their chance.

The last suggestion is rather difficult to swallow, even with a large grain of salt. But it is true that the Spanish people have a great regard for Alfonso as an individual, and that he remains on the throne largely on that account, rather than because of any national loyalty to the institution of monarchy. His continuance as king is a triumph of personal popularity.

That is why the fuss and feathers and worry about the succession which keep the Madrid court and the government stirred up, seems like a waste of time and energy. The likelihood that a weak king or an unpopular one could maintain himself in the Spanish capital, as long even as Manuel maintained himself in Portugal after Carlos was assassinated, is not much bigger than the likelihood of a Bourbon restoration in France.

AS TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

A Minneapolis preacher—the Rev. Phillips Osgood—says the Sunday school has outlived its usefulness and should be abolished. He says it undermines the church. Parents send their children to Sunday school and make that an excuse for not going to the church service. The argument looks weak and is weak. Some Sunday schools have outlived their usefulness. In fact, they never were useful. There are many today conducted in such a way and with such lessons that young people learn nothing about life and its problems. They are not prepared for living. That is the fault of the teachers and the kind of lessons that are used. It is not an indictment of the idea of Sunday school. Get the right teachers, the right texts, and the right system, and Sunday school is one of the great character building enterprises of life.

IS IT THE END OF JAZZ AGE?

Comes now Dr. Reiser, famous New York pastor, who proclaims the passing of the jazz age in 1930. There is a saying that when anything is bad it has to get worse before it gets well. The jazz age probably is not at its worst, though one hates to trample upon the optimism of Dr. Reiser. Dr. Reiser calls attention to the new style of books, "devoid of emphasis on sex." Here are some other of his reasons, according to the New York Times:

"He cited recent biography, which he termed cleaner and more idealizing; the growing interest in religious books, which have jumped from seventh to second place in the list of sales; the rising standards of the movies, the elevation of the stage, the growing interest of young people in the church, the increasing enrollment in theological seminaries and educational institutions."

THE BEST MERGERS

In this day of mergers the question is constantly raised as to whether the big merger is a good or a bad thing for the greater number of people in some way involved in it. More economical operation may mean hundreds of men out of work and standardized products may mean poorer products. But there is one kind of merger that most of us hail with satisfaction, and that is the church merger. In 1931 one branch of the Christian church—a million strong—will unite with the Congregationalists. Other mergers are in contemplation. Unity is a far off, but that we even make steps toward it and think about it is a sign of improving and not decadent civilization.

When was Texas a Republic?

When did she become a state? Texas won her independence from Mexico and became the Republic of Texas in 1836. In the years immediately following there were repeated invasions and massacres by the Mexicans, who never abandoned their claims to the Texas territory. They advanced three times, as far as San Antonio, but in each case were repelled. Statehood was offered to Texas, but the question of annexation brought up the slave question, which became the national issue of the Polk campaign. However, Polk won the presidency by favoring annexation. Before he took the oath of office congress passed a joint resolution again offering statehood to Texas, which she accepted and became a part of the United States in 1845.

What was the Mason-Dixon line established for? When Pennsylvania was granted to Penn. a dispute arose between Lord Baltimore and Penn. as to the boundary between their grants. The issue was settled in 1767, when the Mason and Dixon's line was established. This line separated Maryland from Delaware and Pennsylvania. The boundary between Maryland and West Virginia was not definitely settled until 1912.

NEW YORK CITY, New York — Marion Spore, "The Angel of the Bowery," was married the other day. For years she maintained her own private boudoir on Derelict Lane, and as one of The Boys put it, "never done no preachin'." Naturally some cognizance had to be taken of the marriage by the denizens of the flop joints and after due consideration a telegram of congratulation was dispatched to the bride, voicing the hope that she would live long and prosper. The telegram was sent collect.

PATRIOTIC

George Peck, the Sage of Grassmere, returned recently from Sunny It, wearing one of Mr. Mussolini's Fascist buttons on the left lapel of his Moe Levy and laden with some brand new yarns he heard about the ship.

George says the most interesting thing he encountered on the trip was a male passenger who, two days out, at a champagne party, insisted upon swigging long draughts from his own hip flask.

"An' what's the ambrosia you're so proud of?" queried George.

"Good old Minnesota bathtub gin," replied the traveller, proudly.

POTENTIAL AGITATORS

According to the East Indian Club, of this city, there marched with Gandhi to the sea recently one of the 150 Indian students who are preparing here to go back some day and make it lively for the British. Narayan B. Patulekar boarded a steamer as soon as he heard of the civil disobedience movement, and the next heard of him he was in an Indian prison.

According to the Indians here, the Gandhi uprising is no tempest in a teapot. I am informed there are 600 Indian students in the United States and everyone of them as well as the 5,000 scattered over Europe is a potential revolutionist.

DEFEAT OF FURNIFOLD SIMMONS AFTER THIRTY YEARS IN SENATE DESCRIBED AS BLOW TO TWO MEN

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Senator Furnifold Simmons' defeat for a re-nomination in North Carolina classes as a tragedy.

A lot of people are bound to be glad of it and say it served him right, but it is tragic just the same. Macbeth's finish made a tragedy, even though Mac only got what was coming to him. (Not necessarily, of course, to say that Simmons only got what was coming to him, but merely to recognize that viewpoint.)

It would not have been so bad if the senator had been beaten by the opposition party.

Instead, he was turned down by his own—by the machine he himself had created. (He never made any bones about his "machine.") After a generation's more absolute dictatorship than Mussolini's in Italy, after 30 years in the U. S. senate (its oldest member in point of service), he was denied the re-nomination he wanted, at the age of 76, to fulfill his ambition to die in office.

And Josiah W. Bailey, who did win the nomination, was one of his former lieutenants—trained by him in politics.

What is tragedy—if that isn't?

SENATOR SIMMONS had the reputation of a stern boss, but he doesn't suggest it in appearance. Short, slender and washed-out, looking, they called him the "little giant."

Nevertheless his manner was none too mild, on occasion. I remember listening to him, at his office in the Capitol building, a few months before the 1928 conventions. He had called to ask him about the then pending tax bill—for Simmons has long been the ranking Democratic member of the senate finance committee and knows more concerning G. O. P. fiscal ineptitudes than any other half dozen statesmen in Washington.

However, he had several things to say voluntarily.

His pet's coming convention already was on his mind, and evidently he thought it desirable to give the press a timely hint of what would follow, if that happened at Houston which threatened to happen—and did happen.

THE SENATOR was not violent but he was unmistakable. He described how North Carolina would go that November in the event of certain developments (at Houston) but what he meant was that he would see to it that it went that way. He was simply explicit. Moreover at that stage of the game, he did not overestimate his European markets that even the water-front drunks of foreign cities refuse to touch.

BROADWAY

Furtive street peddlers have again swooped down on Broadway and the side thoroughfares. Again their raucous voices, raised in a paen to spring or Mammon, mount high above the din of the most famous street in the world. They include every kind of gyp from the song pirates to vendors of watches that run for about 48 hours and then lose interest.

They have no licenses, nor could they obtain any, and it is the duty of the police to shoot them away. Just as well to try to sweep back the ocean—one goes and another takes his place.

And New York buys, gets stung and likes it.

power to accomplish what he was promising.

Yes, indeed; he did more than his share toward pulling the house down, but the ruins fell on him when they got around to it.

SENATOR J. THOMAS HEFLIN of Alabama has looked muddling blue about the gills since the Simmons catastrophe.

To be sure, North Carolina finally turned and renominated Simmons, but at least it did what he dictated in 1928. Alabama did not even do as Senator Heflin commanded it to do in that year. The inference seems unpleasantly plain that it is apt to read Heflin wider open next fall than North Carolina already has renominated Simmons.

In one respect the agony is worse for Heflin than for Simmons—more prolonged, that is to say. Simmons knows the worst now. Heflin has four or five months to anticipate it.

TO EXPLAIN

Simmons' bolled (as politicians vulgarly express it) his party's 1928 national ticket in North Carolina. Heflin did likewise in Alabama. When Simmons asked for his senate renomination this month he was beaten, Josiah Bailey winning. The Alabama state committee refused even to let Heflin run for re-nomination on the Democratic ticket—forcing him to campaign independently for re-election. Simmons could run independent.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

A PERFECT STICK

"HO, HUM! I wonder what time it is," remarked Brown Beetle, squinting up at the sun. "I promised to meet Mrs. Brown Beetle early in the forenoon and go house-hunting. She'll think something has happened to me and when she finds nothing has—that I haven't kept my word—won't I catch it!" Brown Beetle winked at Peter. "Guess I better be getting along. A nuisance, moving, but a green frog recently has settled down in our neighborhood, settled much too close to our front door for comfort. By the way, I wonder where wife is? Here comes Mr. Measurer. Maybe he can tell me."

"Who in the world is Mr. Measurer?" asked Peter, peering about, but seeing no one, although he did notice a stick floating near them in the water. "Where is the fellow?" Brown Beetle, however, paid no attention to Peter's question, but addressed an invisible somebody.

"Good afternoon, Water Measurer. How are you today? And have you seen anything of my good wife? If you have, tell me, is she far away?"

"Hello, Brown Beetle," squeaked a faint voice, that seemed to come from far off. "Pardon me for not seeing you, but you know business comes before pleasure with me, and I am so interested in measuring off this pool that I am most absent-minded. Friends are always scolding me for passing them by without greeting. I don't mean to be rude. It's just that I keep my eyes on my work. Dear me, how annoying. I have measured this shore line five times this morning and every time the leg's lengths are different."

Next: "Water Measurer on the Job."

ly, too, for that matter, but the primary vote against him was so heavy that he deems it hopeless.

Heflin hitherto has been more optimistic as to his re-election chances. If Simmons had won his renomination, he would have been quite so. Under the circumstances, he is sure to worry considerably between now and next November.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Salmon Salad Warm Bran Rolls
Corn Griddle Cakes Fruit
Coffee

This menu may be served for supper or luncheon. It may be made from canned materials or fresh. In the latter case the corn may be cut from the cob and the left-over broiled or boiled salmon may be flaked and used in place of the canned. Recipes serve six.

Today's Recipes

Salmon Salad—Two cups flaked salmon, one cup diced celery, one-third cup diced pickle, two hard cooked eggs, three-fourths cup salad dressing, six tomatoes. Dip tomatoes in boiling water and skin. Scoop out centers and chill. Mix salmon with other ingredients, and fill tomatoes. Serve on crisp lettuce.

Corn Griddle Cakes—Two and one-half cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, one egg, beaten, two cups milk, one tablespoon oil, one No. 2 can corn. Mix and sift dry ingredients and stir in the milk and egg beaten together. Mix quickly, only enough to blend ingredients and smooth the batter. Add the corn, strain to distribute. Drop by tablespoons on to a hot greased griddle and cook until bubbles form on the top, then turn over and finish cooking. Handle carefully, as the cakes are tender.

Suggestions

To Make Hot Tea—Scald an earthen or china pot. Measure and put in the tea, from one-half to one teaspoon for a cup, (one-half pint), according to the tea used and strength desired. Pour on freshly boiling water—it must be just boiling to get that good flavor. Cover and steep, do not boil, for three to five minutes, keeping in a warm place. Serve immediately, or if it is to stand, strain tea off leaves or remove leaves.

To Make Iced Tea—Make hot tea, using more tea than for the hot beverage. Strain off tea infusion and cool slowly—do not put in refrigerator, as it may become cloudy. Serve in glass half filled with crushed ice, with lemon slices, sprigs of mint, orange strips, maraschino cherries, etc. Make fresh tea for the iced drink, if possible; however, tea that is carefully poured from leaves and cooled slowly will give a refreshing drink. The hot tea may be poured directly over ice—this method requires a large quantity of ice.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

MRS. M.: Nail biting is a habit which is practically always begun in childhood and should be broken then. Visits to the manicurist and rewards for not biting the nails are better than punishment or putting bitter substances, such as quinine, on them. If the child has begun the habit very early, before you can reason with him, smart slaps—whenver it bites—on the offending hand may be effective.

Those who have bitten the nails in childhood will revert to the habit occasionally when very much preoccupied and a nail happens to be rough. When the ordinary person has to manicure his nails once or twice a week, he must manicure his every day and see that they are very smooth, with no tags of loose skin that will tempt him to bite. The victim should have a nail file with him always, to smooth out any rough places. When the nails aren't smooth, the inclination to bite em' smooth—which can't be done, anyway. He should have a cuticle clipper (there is one that the manicurists use that I like better than the manicure scissors) and every morning clip off any ragged skin. If the cuticle is pushed back from the nail daily, it will not grow down and will be easier to prevent from getting ragged.

Occasionally a nail does get bitten off, it is a good plan to put little adhesive straps over the end until it is grown out. They may have to be applied on all of them. And changed several times a day. Biting the nails is considered a form of nervousness and perhaps it is, but I believe it is mostly a hold-over habit from childhood. One thing is certain, however, that the biting causes nervousness, both to the biter and the onlooker. The habit is quite common. It is barely possible that some nail biting children have a mineral starvation, but I know many well nourished children who also have the habit. Nail biting is a very unlovely and repellent habit and no one knows this better than the nail biter himself, if he is an adult. It is not a sign of degeneracy in any way, although, of course, degenerates may bite their nails.

"Dear Doctor: Please give me your opinion on facial operations such as having a nose straightened? Many of my friends are discouraging me by saying they usually these operations end in disaster, or that the nose will eventually return to its former shape. I am inclined to believe otherwise, especially if the surgeon is a good one."

"MISS E." Yes, a competent plastic surgeon can practically remodel the face, and there is no danger of its returning to its original shape. Miss E. There is no need of any of the going through life with a badly deformed nose, or any other feature, nowadays. Ring up your County Medical Society and ask for a list of surgeons who specialize in plastic surgery.

Mr. T.: We have an article on Hives which may help you. See column rules.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover the cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters, care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It seems sometimes as if all the women who are unmarried were asking how to gain attention from men, or how to win back the boy friend whose love is growing cold.

And most of the married women are unhappy and want to know what had best be done, whether to stay with their husbands and bear the troubles that they have, or leave and "fly to others that they know not of."

LONESOME AND FRIENDLESS married a man who was separated from his wife. The wife had left him, leaving two little children who were taken care of by the husband's mother and father. The grandmother later died, the children's mother was notified, but said she had no place for the little ones so the writer took the children to her heart and made a happy home for her husband, his two children by his first wife, her own little girl by a former marriage, and a child born of this union.

New Friend Husband has gotten tired of domesticity and is "stepping out," and naturally his wife is heartbroken. The Other Woman in the case floated her when she was appealed to, and Lonesome and Friendless doesn't know what to do. Well, Lonesome and Friendless, I certainly would not give up my home and children if I were you. I'd stick and hope for better times. I don't believe your husband will desert you and all the kiddies. He probably thinks he's having a "devilish" good time, but I warrant he won't give up his good home and wife who waits on him as you do. Why do you wait on him like that, by the way? Maybe if you demanded more of him you'd get better treatment.

He is a good deal older than you, and I think I would let him make all the advances. Perhaps chance will later give you an opportunity to find out all you want to know.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

Fashion would no longer be fashion if it did not change. And yet, because of the inconsistencies of style, women find themselves continually confronted with new and difficult problems.

The graceful long skirts designed by the Parisian couturiers are now definitely in vogue. But the extremely long skirt has had to modify its dictates. For, although street and sportswear concede the new femininity and the new waistline, they still retain the shorter skirt. This decidedly complicates the feminine problem of coiffure.

Long hair seems a natural development of long skirts. Indeed the smart new hemlines just seem to demand more complicated, feminine coiffures. And yet, long hair is somewhat incompatible with the shorter skirts advocated for sport frocks.

There are some rather unique ways of combating this difficulty. For example, Janet Gaynor allows her hair to grow to about shoulder length. Then, by arranging the ends of her hair to terminate in ringlets, she can convert it to a bob. Again, if the occasion demands a more complicated coiffure, it is possible for her to arrange her hair with a small knot at the nape of her neck.

Others of the stage and screen stars favor the retention of the bob and the wearing of extra long pieces for afternoon and evening. Short hair undoubtedly lends itself well to styles of individuality. With the use of extra pieces it can be made to appear exactly like long hair, and be just as artistically arranged.

And even if your husband continues to take his pleasure away from home, stick to the children. They need you and love you, and you will surely get your reward in some way or other if you stand by them.

By the way, I wouldn't want you to take up drinking and carousing, but be as gay and companionable as possible, and maybe your husband will gradually cease going out with his friends because he has more fun at home.

"DEAR MISS LEE: It is the same old story. 'How can I meet him?' Every day I see a real nice fellow on the railway. I see him notice me once in awhile. I should love to meet him. I realize he may be married, or engaged or a dozen other things, but how can I find out? It is not ladylike to flirt openly, and a gentleman cannot speak first. I want to try to help me. He seems about 30, at any rate over 25, and I am 18. Do you think him too old for me?"

Pretty dangerous business making acquaintance on the train, for so young a girl, Looie, I think if he really is interested he could approach you and make some excuse to speak or to give you a chance to speak first, don't you? He may be married, as you suggest, and in that case his wife would not be very well pleased if he started a flirtation with a young girl, would she? Put yourself in her place. How would you feel under the circumstances?

He is a good deal older than you, and I think I would let him make all the advances. Perhaps chance will later give you an opportunity to find out all you want to know.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Peroxide

Anxious: Peroxide is a bleach, as it releases nascent oxygen. I would not advise its unadulterated use on the hair, as it usually tends to remove the natural oil from the hair.

Brushing

Dot: Brushing will make the hair tractable. Also, you might apply a bit of olive oil or brilliantine to keep the hair in place.

Flabby Bust

Jackie: Exercises involving the muscles of the upper anterior part of the body will make the bust firm. Astringents should be applied only after the skin has been cleansed.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Face" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each, to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

CARROLL - BINDERS WIN FROM GEYERS IN LEAGUE UPSET 13-8

Behind the pitching of Jacobs, his newly-acquired hurler, the Carroll-Binder Co. softball team furnished one of the major upsets of the current softball season by pounding out a 13 to 8 victory over Geyers in a National League game Thursday night at Cox Athletic Field.

Overcoming a five-run lead amassed by Geyers in the first three innings, Carroll-Binder knocked P. Boxwell, Geyer pitcher, out of the box in the eighth and clinched the game at the expense of his successor, "Bulldog" Smith, in the ninth.

The defeat was only the second for Geyers this season but knocks this team out of a tie with the Lang Chevrolet Co. for first place in the league standing.

Jacobs, recently obtained by Carroll-Binder from the Graham Paints in a trade, had a shaky start but his pitching grew stronger as the game progressed, while P. Boxwell, starting hurler for Geyers, was invincible at the start, but was hit freely in the later rounds.

Carroll-Binder outlived Geyers slightly, getting fifteen bingles as compared with thirteen hits for the losers.

A walk, a double by N. Murrell and two errors enabled Geyers to score three runs in the first inning. Geyers added another in the second on a walk, a sacrifice fly and N. Murrell's single and in the third stanza an error sandwiched in between singles by Seal and Bottorff accounted for another tally.

After being helpless at the plate for three rounds, Carroll-Binder loosened its heavy artillery in the fourth. Consecutive hits by L. Cope, Leahy, Dice and Peters scored two runs. The Cope boys put on a brother act to score two runs in the fifth. W. Cope walked and L. Cope smacked a home run over N. Murrell's head.

Carroll-Binder took the lead in the sixth and never relinquished it. Two bases on balls and a triple by Woolary produced three runs. Singles by Peters and Foley and Woolary's double together with an error boosted Carroll-Binder's total to ten runs in the eighth and this round witnessed the retirement of Geyers.

Geyers threatened in their half of the eighth, launching a determined rally that netted three runs. Bottorff's double, Boxwell's single, hits by Smith and N. Murrell and a sacrifice fly produced three runs, but Carroll-Binder clinched the game in the ninth when Woolary knocked a home run after Leahy and Peters had singled.

Collecting a double, triple and home run, Woolary was the leading hitter for the winners. Foley, Leahy and Peters also obtained three blows apiece. Smith and N. Murrell each hit safely three times for Geyers.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 20.—Most sections of the market reached a higher level of prices in the first hour today, in continuation of the rally which was in progress during the greater part of yesterday's session. The 2 1/2 per cent. reserve bank discount rate caused no particular stir in Wall Street since money has been a drug on the market for a long time, but the $211,000,000 decrease in brokers' loans suggested a strengthening of the market's technical position.

New gains of 1 to 3 1/2 points in a number of the market leaders at the opening brought prices from 4 to 20 points above the low levels of the week. The shorts were crowded in the first period and compelled to pay higher prices, after which the market shifted for itself, gradually settling into a lower level. Trading was fairly heavy in the second hour, with the tape ten minutes behind the market.

A rush of profit-taking in this period wiped out a good portion of the early advances. Westinghouse Electric, which opened at 142 3/8, slipped off to 137. United States Steel reacted from 162 to 160. Public Service of N. J., declined 5 points from its opening price and, measured by the same standard, reactions of 1 to 3 points were recorded all along the line. At best, the market was a traders' session. Call money renewed at 3 1/2 per cent.

PERSONNEL OF BOY SCOUT CAMP STAFF ANNOUNCED BY PORTZ

Announcement of the personnel of the camp staff for Camp Miami, near Yellow Springs, summer camp for the Tecumseh Council, Boy Scouts of America, which is to be opened June 23 and will be continued until August 4, was made by Harvey O. Portz, Springfield, Scout Executive, recently.

Mr. Portz will again be resident director and will devote his personal attention to the camp. He will also direct the waterfront activities which include boating and swimming. Parents of the boys in camp will thus be assured that the safety of their boys whether in or on the water will be carefully protected.

Homer T. Gratz, Xenia, field executive for the Tecumseh Council, will be activities director at the camp this year while Lynas Skendore, a native Oneida Indian and famous athlete of the Haskell Institute of Lawrence, Kans., will be camp fire director.

Other members of the staff will be John Cooley, first aid director; Pixley Morrett and Lannert Lighart, in charge of the camp sanitary department and grounds police; Joe Harris, in charge of the commissary and bugler; George Hopper, keeper of the records, and George Meek, handicraft director. Four of these men are Eagle Scouts from Springfield and all are well qualified for their respective positions.

Members of the camp committee were at the camp last week getting the equipment set up and making further preparations for the opening of camp on Monday. Members of the camp staff will go to Camp Miami Friday and will remain there to complete the preparations for the camp opening.

BACCALAUREATE AT ANTIOCH SUNDAY BY BISHOP PAUL JONES

Commencement week activities at Antioch College will be inaugurated Sunday night when Bishop Paul Jones, who has accepted a position as director of religious activities at Antioch for the 1930-31 school year, will deliver the address at baccalaureate services for the graduating class of sixty students. He will discuss the topic, "Flexibility: Youth's Greatest Asset."

Bishop Jones, who, during the last year has been acting Episcopal bishop of Southern Ohio, was in charge of the Episcopalian diocese of Utah from 1914-18, was missionary-in-charge of the Central Maine Mission from 1918-20, and secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation from 1920-29.

The annual junior prom will take place Thursday, June 26 and on Friday the alumni will gather for the yearly business meeting and banquet. On Friday evening the senior Antioch Players will present three one-act plays on the same east platform of Antioch Hall where, in 1853, Horace Mann, the first president of Antioch, received the keys to the institution.

Commencement exercises will be held Saturday, June 28 outdoors, as is the custom, if weather conditions permit. Arthur E. Morgan, president of the college, will deliver the commencement address. At 10 a. m. the academic procession will proceed from the Horace Mann memorial library to "the mound." Musical selections will be presented by the college orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Erna Juellig Broda.

THEODORE JOHNSON DIES HERE FRIDAY FROM LONG ILLNESS

Theodore Johnson, 74, died at his home on Hill St., Friday morning at 6 o'clock after an illness of about eight months. His condition became serious two weeks ago. A complication of diseases caused his death.

Mr. Johnson was born in Cedarville, May 26, 1854 and was the son of the late Henry and Bertha Johnson. When a small boy he moved with his parents to Port William and later moved to a farm near Xenia where he lived for thirty-five years. He has been a resident of Xenia for thirteen years. He was a member of First M. E. Church.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna E. Johnson, one daughter, Mrs. Robert Luce, two grand children, Richard and Elizabeth Ann and two sisters, Miss Melbie Johnson and Mrs. Elmer Oldham. Funeral services will be held at the residence Monday morning at 10 o'clock. Burial will be made in Port William Cemetery. Friends may call at the residence after 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

WILBERFORCE HAS POPULATION GAIN

Wilberforce has a 1930 population of 554, an increase of 168 in the last ten years, according to figures released Friday by Wilbur H. Story, Springfield, district census supervisor. The population as shown by the 1920 census was 386. There were sixteen farms enumerated in this area in the fifteenth census and a survey made April 1 disclosed there were only seven persons living at Wilberforce who were reported on the unemployment schedule as without a job and looking for work.

CAPACITY CROWD SEES LEGION MOVIE

Capacity houses greeted the first showing Thursday afternoon and night of "A Lady to Love," benefit motion picture presented at the Bijou Theater under the auspices of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion.

It is pointed out that those who were unable to attend any of the performances Thursday may still purchase tickets Friday as the benefit movie will be repeated Friday, matinee and night. Paul Turnbull, chairman of the committee in charge, announces that for the convenience of patrons wishing to attend who have not procured tickets from Legionnaires, the box office at the Bijou will be open Friday evening.

In addition to the feature moving picture, starring lovely Vilma Banky in her first all-talkie production, an American Legion film entitled "Old Glory," depicting the history of the flag, and also a news reel rounds out the program presented.

Interrupts Lobby Quiz Calls It "Hold-Up"

One of the most important weddings of the season will take place on June 23 when Miss Mary T. Clark, Philadelphia debutante, becomes the bride of Nelson Rockefeller, second son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The ceremony is to be read in St. Asaph's Protestant Episcopal church, in Bala, a suburb of Philadelphia, by the Rev. Benjamin N. BOY ARRESTED IN AUTO THEFT PROBE

CLEVELAND, June 20.—A 14-year-old boy, whom police believe has been responsible for numerous automobile thefts in Ashland, Medina and Cleveland, was being held by detectives here today pending investigation.

The youth was found in the attic of his parents' home on the west side last night, hiding under a pile of blankets behind trunks.

Detectives William Collier and Frank Churchfield said that the boy later confessed to fifteen automobile thefts in five weeks.

THE VALUE OF FAITH

Dr. Hugh Black says, "In faith are exemplified goodness, beauty, truth, mercy, love and compassion and because this is so, sooner or later, one's deeds are determined by one's faith and by deeds is everyone judged."

Faith is fundamental in the Christian religion—"We are saved by faith"; we are "to walk by faith"—we are "to die in the faith." Faith must be exercised else it will weaken and die.

It is the church service of worship where Christianity is taught, where inspiration may be received to "walk in the faith." Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

This quarter has dealt with the Kingdom and the Cross. Christianity founded by the cross-bearer is a religion of cross-bearing which becomes glorious to the spiritual man.

II.

At the center of Christianity is humility, lowliness, the child spirit, the child is the model member of the kingdom of God.

III.

Peter found forgiveness harder than he thought, far wider than he imagined. Forgiveness is not merely the absence of hatred but the evident presence of love; it is not only refraining from harming a foe but it is actively blessing him.

IV.

The obstruction to complete discipleship must be learned and it must be removed when known; it may be one's money, social prestige, political power, pleasure, fame, ease.

V.

So keen are men for advancement that often renown rather than humility and service is the objective. The truly humble man makes service his motive accepting the position in which he may render the best service.

VI.

It is hard to set up a kingdom of peace, for there is no example of it in history. Jesus the Prince of Peace, was arrested and crucified. Advocates of peace may expect persecution.

VII.

Those who attacked Jesus in the temple had a chance to learn profitable lessons which if well learned would have transformed their lives.

To secure immediate results without a good background lacks stability, however personal work urging the performance of some special duty has its value.

How shall tardiness on the part of a great majority be eliminated in Sunday School attendance?

In the lower grades a pre-session period consisting of music, story telling and friendly conversation may be helpful. If punctuality is an objective, then the fact should be recorded and duly announced with the other items of the secretary's report. The program from the beginning should be made as to expect punctuality—that is the best part may be first; at least the opening part of the program should not be arranged as if it were to accommodate late pupils.

One school gives to early arrivals tickets marked "On Time" and these tickets are collected and reported by classes or departments and a comparative report is made and announced. If special commendation is given to all classes that excel in punctuality, it will have a good effect in having other classes make a better record.

Welsh Immigrant Boy Wins Fame in Land of Promise

From Humble Origin James J. Davis Attains Cabinet Post and Senatorial Nomination

OCCUPIED 'KAISER'S SUITE' on LEVIATHAN JAMES J. DAVIS.

From a lowly immigrant boy entering the Land of Opportunity through Old Castle Garden, New York City, James J. Davis has demonstrated that opportunity still exists for those who would grasp it. From an iron puddler at the age of sixteen, he filled the exalted post of secretary of labor of the United States and a few days ago won the Republican nomination for the senate in the state of Pennsylvania, the state where he toiled as a young Welsh immigrant boy.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—Near the top of every list of illustrious self-made Americans should be placed the name of Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who has just won the Republican senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania.

From earliest childhood, Secretary Davis has known poverty and the long hours of daily toil. A Welsh immigrant boy, his intelligence and industry has carried him through many years of heart-breaking struggle to his present eminence as a national political figure. Secretary Davis came to this country from Wales in 1880—at the age of seven. With his parents and five other children, the family settling in Sharon, Pa.

Because his hard-working father found feeding so many little ones a severe strain on his modest earning capacity, young Jim found it necessary to contribute to his own support almost from the day the family established itself in America.

His first job was driving cows to pasture and paid $1.25 a week. Even this small sum proved of assistance to the poverty-stricken immigrant family. At eleven he left school to work in a nail factory at 50 cents an hour. At sixteen he became a competent iron puddler, work which usually requires the full strength of a grown man.

The stripling's chief hobby was attending union meetings as a member of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. As a youngster, the problems of his co-workers in the mills absorbed young Davis.

By traveling as an active worker to steel centers all over the country, he gained a wide knowledge of his trade. During the great industrial depression of 1893, Davis was employed at Birmingham, Ala. The suffering among the unemployed mill hands he witnessed at that time made an indelible impression on his mind. He decided to devote as much time as possible to the labor cause.

Moving to Elkwood, Ind., the young Welshman was recognized as a natural born leader. He became chairman of the local union and later city clerk and county auditor.

In addition he joined the Loyal Order of Moose and in 1907 became director-general of that organization. It was his work of building the Moose membership to 600,000, from a nucleus of 247, that first attracted national notice to Davis. He won greater prominence later when he founded Mooseheart, Ind., a community located thirty-five miles from Chicago, where homes and education were provided for children of members of the order.

In 1921 Davis relinquished his office in the Moose to become secretary of labor under President Harding. Serving under three successive presidents in the line intervening years, Davis made an enviable record for himself.

Among the difficult situations he has handled as labor secretary was the unemployment readjustment problem of 1921, the two year wage squabble between the railway workers and owners, and the many disturbances and strikes in the mining industry.

The Eastern Star chapter will hold its regular meeting Friday in the Odd Fellows Hall on account of the Masonic Hall undergoing repairs. The business is very urgent. Each member is asked to be present.

The Rev. A. L. Dooley moved his household effects to Lima, O., Thursday, where he has accepted the pastorate of the Second Baptist Church.

Mrs. Dooley and children will remain in Springfield with her sister, Mrs. Emma Curry, until after the funeral services of the late Rev. E. W. B. Curry.

Prof. Arthur Taylor, E. Main St., returned Thursday after a short visit with relatives in Cleveland. While away he also visited a few days the Bible School in Anderson, Ind.

There will be a porch social at the home of Mrs. Ed Williams, E. Second St., Saturday, beginning at twelve o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor entertained with a dinner party Thursday, at their home on E. Main St. Mrs. Bradley E. Frye of New York, was honor guest.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Clara Dee Forester is the pampered, motherless daughter of a millionaire, who is so disgusted with the wealthy young that he leaves his daughter one dollar at his death, hoping that some quality in her will make her a successful woman. She goes to Mrs. Flynn's boarding house to live, and there meets Winfield Baxter, a young chemist. Also Estelle Kay, who persuades her to model for the famous artist, Ivan Moreau. Both men fall in love with her. Estelle becomes jealous of Ivan and leaves the city with a mysterious threat. Clara Dee is invited to the studio for dinner New Year's Eve, but Estelle comes first to see Ivan, begs him to marry her, and is sent away angry.

Clara Dee arrives and tries to evade his attentions, while Estelle goes to Winfield and tells him where Clara Dee is.

Bitterly grieved, he moves away from Mrs. Flynn's that same evening. Estelle regrets her rashness, and leaves a note that Winfield never sees. Clara Dee tries to escape from Ivan, who has been drinking. She manages to get a revolver and commands him to open the door—when she finds it already unlocked, stumbles and falls down the stairs, hearing vaguely the sounds of a shot and a shrill scream.

Gregory finds her in the lower hall and takes her home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

New Year's Day, and again without means of support! Not a very encouraging outlook on the day which is supposed to indicate one's degree of prosperity during the coming year. At whatever cost or sacrifice, she had firmly decided not to continue her work for Ivan. She had saved a little money, a little more than she had half when she first came to Mrs. Flynn's, and she decided that the next six months could scarcely be harder than the last. She regretted her purchases of the previous week; the coral velvet gown and the marked down items in which she had indulged. True, they had been necessities; but there can be a difference between even necessities when one has no income.

But she had one more asset than she had six months ago, or soon would have. In another two weeks, she would have completed her business training, and surely that would enable her to find some kind of a moderately well-paying position. She lay with her eyes wide open, for a long time staring at the stained paper of the ceiling—thinking. In spite of her longing for freedom and the old prosperity, not once had she doubted the sanity of her reply to Ivan's proposition. Well—possibly the world had become more tolerant of moral lassitude, but somehow, that didn't improve society, nor abate the consequent suffering. Being extremely modern and fortified by the approval of the patrician set, due to her financial independence, she had dared much, pretended more, actually indulged less.

At times, the lechery of some of her associates had almost sickened her, was nauseating to her delicate sense of self-respect. Although she embarked upon motor rides which by all right of precedent, would culminate parties for her, there had been little necking for Clara Dee. She smiled wanly, with amusement, as she recalled several youths who had been properly relegated to their respectful distance by a smart slap from her otherwise quite helpless little hand. But Ivan was different. He had not even presumed to disregard the usual conventions. For him, they just didn't exist. Nothing that she could say or do, would be likely to change his opinions or character. She had tried. The best she could do would be to avoid him entirely.

She was sure that she had never encouraged him to believe that she would accept him. She had honestly given him her time as an employee and, for several weeks, had accepted his insistent invitations as a friend. She had grown rather fond of him in spite of a vague distrust of him, and in her defense of him to others, had sometimes wondered if she were growing to care for him. His manner was so persuasive and courteously domineering.

But since his strategic attempt of last evening, when he had endeavored to place her in a position, where she had no choice but a questionable reputation, she recognized that what she had felt for him was only a fascination; and that he was more her enemy than her friend. She hadn't a doubt but that some other would soon take her place in both his work and infatuation, as he had conveniently described it. Well—let them. How infinitely more precious were love and—tenderly, she visioned a brown head bent intently over perplexing apparatus.

She could no longer endure the gyrating thoughts which whirled madly through her brain so she again climbed out of bed and began to dress, each movement adding to the torture of pain, until she felt quite faint. Hot coffee would give her strength, she decided. Her eyes fell upon the lustrous pearl necklace, where it quivered so inconspicuously upon the cheap cotton scarf of the chiffonier. Without reconsideration, she took the velvet-lined case from the top drawer and arranged the jewels in it, wrapped and tied it securely and addressed it to Ivan Moreau.

On her way downstairs to breakfast, she stepped outside and, looking up the street, became curious as to the cause of the unusually shrill cries of the newsboys. She called a boy, bought a paper, glanced at the ninety-six point type of the headlines—"Artist Murdered" she read with horror. Then the smaller headlines, "Only Clew Is Wrap With Tailor's Name On Label."

With wildly beating heart she read on, that the prominent illustrator and portrait painter had been murdered in his apartment, probably by some model he had employed. A revolver had been found in the upper hallway—a woman's velvet wrap in the cloak closet—no other clew—

The news staggered her. Its full portent she did not grasp at once. It even seemed strange to her that she had been with the man only last evening, even very late, until past midnight—perhaps not long before the tragedy. But who—And how had she come to awake at Mrs. Flynn's? If only she could compel her memory to tell her just what had happened!

She tried to move down the hall toward the kitchen, but found that she was very weak and trembling violently. She steadied herself for a moment against the dull, yellowish-brown of the wainscoting, then proceeded slowly to the dining room—happily unconscious of the next bomb which would be exploded at her feet.

Mrs. Flynn exclaimed with concerned surprise, "Why child, what are ye ather thinkin' of? I was plannin' to carry your breakfast up directly. Didn't ye hear the doctor tell ye 't' be stayin' in bed a few days?"

"I'll be all right, Mother Flynn. You are so kind. How can I ever thank you? But, tell me, how did I get home last night?"

"Some big feller, somewhat old, brought ye, and he says fix her up and kape quiet. As the doctor said, I should most likely have called the police and kept him here, but I was that excited and that drunk up—I couldn't think sense at all!"

"Oh, I'm so glad you didn't, Mother Flynn!" with relief.

"Well he called me up after the doctor had left and you was sleepin' comfortable, and asked how ye was and I told him what the doctor said, then I sez, who be ye anyways, and he sez, niver be mindin' that jist so Miss Forester is not seriously hurt. Did ye git run over in the street or sunthin', or whatever did happen to ye, child?"

"Oh, I don't know. It's all so like a terrible dream—everything," she moaned weakly, "—but I'll soon be all right. I do feel dreadful, but I can't waste several days in bed. Perhaps some hot coffee would make me stronger," sinking into a chair at the table. The other lodgers had breakfasted and departed on their devious ways.

Clara Dee still clutched the newspaper in her hands as if she feared to open it and let those glaring words confront her. Mrs. Flynn had waited with mounting impatience to impart her momentous news so she lost no more time after she had served Clara Dee's breakfast.

"Well, afther last night's doin's, I won't be after bein' surprised at nothin' no more," she declared. "That chemist feller up and left as quick as that!" she snapped her thick fingers for emphasis. "—last night, and left not a word as to where he'd be goin'!"

"What did you say, Mother Flynn?" Clara Dee asked in a still, weak voice. She strained forward against the table, eyes wide and lips parted, as if waiting a contradiction of the first statement.

Mrs. Flynn repeated her announcement grimly, then bustled about clearing the tables. Clara Dee fixed her eyes upon her cereal dish, unseeing. A queer sensation passed through her, very similar to that of the time when Gregory had announced that she was absolutely penniless. All that she had possessed of material blessings had been wiped out in one clean sweep—by one casual sentence. Now, all that was precious to her in this new environment had been similarly swept away. At last, she overcame her lethargy and remarked bitterly, "Perhaps he had no more money and had to leave—or he may have completed his formula, and now that success is within reach, he had no more use for us."

"A while ago my leg got red, swollen, and itched terribly. Then it broke out in several places and the pain was intense. I was told varicose veins caused the trouble and I used all kinds of treatments without success. I walked the floor at night in pain. A friend told me he used Resinol Ointment, so I tried it. In two hours I had relief and after using two and one-half large jars, the leg was completely healed." (Signed—Ernest Schmidt, Babylon, N. Y.)

Her landlady shook her head doubtfully. "No, he wasn't lackin' fer money, fer he paid me generous, and didn't seem the kind 't' git stuck up. He acted as if somethin' important had happened all right!"

"Did he move out his things?" Clara Dee asked, unconcerned. "Shore, and quicker'n he moved 'em in all right."

Clara Dee set her teeth hard in her vivid red lips and swallowed determinedly to keep back her tears. Mrs. Flynn thought she understood; indeed, she was almost hurt and disappointed as was Clara Winfield Baxter—if that was really Dee. She said kindly, "Don't be after takin' it all so to heart. More'n my companionship served his likely, ye'll be hearin' of him in a few days. He was right fond of ye, that I know, my dear."

"Oh, what's the use to plan on keepin' anything we want? It is almost always taken away, one way or another. Not that he was so much to me," she hastened to add, "it's only another proof of the axiom. It would have been all the same if I had cared. It proves that you were wrong, too, Mother Flynn, that there is more than one kind of sheep in wolf's clothing. No, we shall most probably never hear of him and disappointed as was Clara Winfield Baxter—if that was really Dee. She said kindly, "Don't be after takin' it all so to heart. More'n my companionship served his purpose, whatever it was; so he has gone on his way."

Now, what had she left of her idealistic convictions, she asked herself, when Mrs. Flynn had bled kitchenward. Her lips twitched with their odd smile. Illustrations in deed! Perhaps Ivan had been as nearly right as she. The whole scheme of things seemed one seething, chaotic mass of uncertainty. Her theories had failed of proof as readily as his. But what did it matter? What did anything—well—oh, why! Must life be so complicated?
